Teacher faced other charges of impropriety

GRANITE CITY — The high school math teacher facing official misconduct charges involving five female students was convicted May 1979 on disorderly conduct charges.

Gary Wilbur, 41, a teacher at Granite City High School, went through a year of court supervision after each of the disorderly conduct charges, according to records provided Monday at the Madison County Courthouse.

"On April 27, 1979, Wilbur entered himself in the library at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville; he pleaded guilty. On May 9, 1979, Wilbur laid on the floor of the SIEU library and looked up the dress of a female student. In each case, he paid a fine of $30 and served a year of court supervision. Supervision in both cases ended July 10, 1980."

"After supervision, Wilbur's record was cleared of the two misdemeanors. Under terms set down by Circuit Judge Philip Rarick, Wilbur underwent psychiatric treatment."

"Wilbur faced felony charges June 11 for allegedly fondling five female students. Randy Massey, the assistant state's attorney handling the case, said Wilbur faced two to five years in prison if convicted."

Wilbur is on sick leave from the high school.

Property buy expected at port district

GRANITE CITY — The closing of the sale of Army property to the St. Louis Regional Port District is expected this month, said Bob Wydra, port general manager.

The port is purchasing 104 acres from the U.S. Army St. Louis Area Support Center.

Mansfield makes campaign official

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

The first step to a 1988 congressional campaign was taken this week by Mike Mansfield, chief of staff to Rep. Mel Price, D-Belleville.

Mansfield, 41, of Belleville, announced the formation of an exploratory committee to seek Price's 21st Congressional District seat. Price plans to retire after his term ends in 1988.

Citing nearly nine years experience as part of Price's staff,

Mansfield said he was encouraged by Price's recent decision to run for re-election.

"I am proud to have played a role in bringing about some of his (Price's) many accomplishments. I've learned from the best. In this experience, that has prompted a number of business and civic leaders to approach me about making the race," according to Mansfield.

Mansfield said he would test his political support in the district by consulting with potential contributors and government, business and labor leaders in the coming weeks.

"I have no illusions about the difficulty of the race," Mansfield said.

Mansfield is a life-long resident of the East St. Louis and Belleville areas. He graduated from Belleville West High School.

In Thursday's Press-Record, Mansfield said he would take a leave of absence from his administrative duties later in his campaign.

Mansfield represented Price in the district through Price's

Edwardsville office for four years before moving to Washington in 1985 as Price's chief of staff. He holds a master's degree in law and an bachelor's degree in administration of justice from SIU-Carbondale.

Others expressing interest in Price's job include St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello, Madison County Treasurer Mike Henkhus, Madison County Auditor Pete Fuchs and Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

Saltich dies at 39

By Bill Begby
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A former District 9 School Board member and 6th Ward alderman, Steve Saltich, died at 5:33 p.m. Monday at St. Luke's Hospital West.

Mr. Saltich, 39, of 2228 Wayne Ave., was ill for a year and a patient at the hospital for several weeks. An autopsy appears on May 16, of today's cause.

He was elected to the school board in 1976, replacing Nameoki.

Township Assessor Carl Macioni, who retired from the board, is serving as interim president from 1977-79 and president from 1980-81.

Mr. Saltich was elected to the City Council in 1981, serving four years. He was defeated in 1985 by 6th Ward Alderwoman Judy Whitaker.

Up to the time of death, he served as Granite City 19th Precinct Committeeman.

While on the council, Mr. Saltich served with Bowler on a committee that recommended a tax that would have affected many local industries, Bowler said. Mr. Saltich took a stand against the tax, which was defeated, Bowler said.

"It was a very strong stand," he said.

"I think that Steve served his community well as a school board member and an alderman," Bowler said. "He voted how he felt."

For the 7th Ward Alderman Mike Modrusic said he served on several aldermanic committees with Mr. Saltich.

"Steve and I have been friends for a long time. I think he got in politics," Modrusic said.

"Steve and I worked very well on the School Board," said Norm Hall, a former board member.

"I feel it's a loss to the community."

MAY QUEEN AND ESCORT, Jill Machino and Scott LaVault, are announced to the community Friday night in Memorial Auditorium. They were selected by the student body of Granite City High School.

Hors d'oeuvres will be served starting at 7:15 p.m. Admission is $7.50. For tickets, call 931-0600.

Venice slide to make big splash

The Venice water slide will open for the summer in a grand opening ceremony at noon, Saturday, May 23, said L. Arnold Johnson, superintendent of parks and recreation. During its second season, the 28-foot slide and 4-foot splash pool will be operated from noon to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Admission is $2 for two hours, and children under 5 must be accompanied by an adult. Tentatively scheduled is a new once-a-month adult night to begin in June.

Report cites BAC Board conflicts

Conflicts among members of the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees, and the future of the Granite City Campus, are being cited in a study by the college's accreditation agency.

50 years ago

Thursday, May 20, 1937

Tell it like it is

Q: Do you think the public should know about the sexual conduct of elected public officials?

Helen Hawkins

"Yes ... I think this (official's misconduct) is the reason for the voter apathy, and I hope it will be a good lesson for all politicians, local, right on up to the top." —Granite City

Nancy Williams

"I don't think it really matters, because they (politicians) do it. He's (Gary Hart) just the one that really got caught." —Madison

Margaret Charter

"I guess not. They (reporters) tend to blow it too much out of proportion." —Granite City

NEXT WEEK With the possibility that St. Clair County Chairman Jerry Costello, Madison County Auditor Peter Fuchs, County Treasurer Mick Henkhus and Mike Mansfield, aide to U.S. Rep. Mel Price, might be candidates for Price's congressional seat, who would you like to see run as democratic candidate?

To record your answer, phone 452-0222 between 5:30 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily. Leave your name, hometown and phone number for verification.

Quote of the week

"I consider it a gift of love," said Carol Chiappa, on-site coordinator for Phoenix Crisis Center, after an anonymous donor bought a four-bedroom house for the group that provides shelter for battered women.

Tip of the hat

Lt. Col. Robert A. Fortin

Community spirit

Lt. Col. Robert A. Fortin, commander at the St. Louis Area Support Center since 1985, opened up the center in Granite City to the public last weekend for the first time in several years. His action helped bind a spirit of unity between the military and the civilian community. Fortin, who will be leaving his command here May 20, was active Granite City Rotarian.

Railroad crossings improved

Nearly 100 railroad crossings in the county have been improved with signal lights and other protection, most of them under the state Grade Crossing Protection Fund, an Illinois Commerce Commission report has revealed.

The ICC is seeking a higher tax on railroads to expand the program, under a bill pending in the legislature.

The ICC report said the deteriorated condition of many crossings requires additional spending on reconstruction. It cited an increase in railroad crossing accidents in 1986.

However, it credited the previous spending from the Grade Crossing Fund, started in 1955, with substantially decreasing fatalities.

Comparing 1977 and 1986, the number of yearly accidents has dropped from 82 to 389, fatalities from 51 to 51 and injuries from 303 to 152.

In Madison County, from 1955 through last year, protection at 56 crossings was improved from 19 to 51. The remaining 37 were improved with local railroad and federal funds.

GC Honor Guard will lead memorial for slain officers

The Granite City Police Department Honor Guard will lead a procession of officers from throughout the county at the start of the first Police Officers Memorial Day at the Madison County Courthouse May 21.

The service will honor the four county area officers killed in the line of duty since 1970, as well as remembering their families, according to Deputy Sheriff John J. Onesky, chairman of the Madison County Police Association, sponsors of the event.

"Some family members will be present," Onesky said.

Granite City Police Chief Bill Hause said the ceremony will be held at the Madison Honor Guard, formed in December.

The honor guard served at funeral services for a retired officer and on Pearl Harbor Day.

Officers will assemble at 10 a.m. Thursday, May 21, near the county jail before the Granite City Honor Guard leads the procession at 10:30 a.m. to the courthouse.

At a rally, a plaque will be presented listing the slain officers. They are: Officer Eddis Miller, of the Alton Police Department, who died July 22, 1970; Officer David L. Davis of the Highland Police Department, who died May 5, 1930; Trooper A.P. Goetting, Granite City, of the Illinois State Police, who died June 19, 1970; and Deputy James Abel, Granite City, of the Madison County Sheriff's Department, who was killed Dec. 30, 1976.

The ceremony will conclude with a luncheon on behalf of the Madison County Police Association to be held at the Wood River Moose Hall in Wood River. The Police Officers Memorial Day is expected to be an annual event.

Proposed motorcycle helmet law bogged down in legislature

SPRINGFIELD — The sponsor of a bill to require motorcycle helmets for all motorcycleists first tried to strengthen the measure and then to weaken it, both without success, last week.

Several motorcycle groups, represented by their association, were lobbying against the bill when it cleared committee in late March.

"Let those who ride decide" was their rallying cry.

Rep. John Cullerton, D-Chicago, first sought an amendment clarifying that the head protection must also be worn by passengers as well as drivers of the power bikes.

If so, it failed the test, getting only 41 favorable votes, with 60 needed to get a bill through on final passage in the House.

After strengthening amendment failed, Cullerton then offered a weakening provision to make the helmet requirement only apply to motorcycleists under 18. It failed, 52-59.

After Cobb left, Nash called police, who arrested Cobb about 15 minutes later at 12:50 a.m. in the 500 block of Nameoki Road. Officers allegedly found a blue .38-caliber pistol with five live rounds and one spent round.

Old, damaged air cleaners can promote heavy oil use

By Larry Bretsneider
Journal correspondent

Excessive oil usage in an automobile or truck engine usually signals the engine wearing out. Sometimes it's not the engine itself, but a part of the ventilation or crankcase pressure system.

Replacing an air filter and an air filter breather element is a relatively simple procedure, and should be done at least twice a year on a regular basis. While changing these filters, you might notice engine oil in the air cleaner housing itself and on the bottom of the air cleaner. Apparently using more oil than before is many times simply the oil in the air cleaner being drawn into the carburetor and entering in the combustion chamber.

Today's engines are high compression motors and are closed vented systems. The positive crankcase ventilation valve (PCV) is used to relieve excessive crankcase pressure and help to prevent oil being drawn or blown up into the engine and air cleaner.

There is a heat tube that runs from the air cleaner to the exhaust manifold. It looks like a cardboard tube, aluminum heat pipe, normally about 1½ or 2 inches in diameter. The heat from the exhaust manifold goes through this tube and opens or closes a valve in the air cleaner, which functions so air is allowed to enter the engine.

If this heat tube is missing or damaged, the diaphragm in the air cleaner will not move and oil will be drawn from another source, such as a valve cover vent tube. Consequently, not only air, but oil also will be sucked or pulled into the air cleaner.

A defective or worn-out PCV valve is another cause. If your engine has an extreme oil usage or excessive oil blow by, then you possibly could have a worn-out PCV valve.

The bottom line is to replace worn or damaged parts as soon as possible. Your engine has had literally thousands of engine hours since the day it was built, and the performance and economy of it relies on everything to work correctly.

This basically is how the positive crankcase ventilation system works. The PCV valve is located in the intake manifold or the valve cover. Fresh air is drawn into the engine through the air cleaner. The crankcase gases are drawn into the manifold by vacuum and replaced by this fresh air. The PCV valve controls the flow of these gases to be reintroduced into the intake manifold where they will be burned again. This reduces the amount of fuel vapors that escape into the atmosphere.

The breather filter and PCV valve should be checked at every tuneup. The breather filter keeps dirt from getting into the intake manifold and the PCV valve. A clogged or plugged PCV valve can create an excessive amount of crankcase pressure, which can lead to oil leaks and prematurely blown out of pan and valve cover gaskets.

Myth about yellow causes collisions

Experts in traffic safety say most Americans do not know the proper function of the solid yellow light, according to Safety Bulletin, a publication of the Truck Council of America.

In most states, the motorist should stop at a yellow light as long as that can be done without endangering passengers or vehicles following behind.

Unfortunately, many drivers believe they should speed up to make it through an intersection before the light turns. This practice often results in collisions.

Used-car buyers escape full impact of depreciation

By Peter Bohr

New cars are always there, lurking in the dealer's showroom—expensive and powerful. And there are certain advantages to buying one.

"You'll be the first. You can break in the car's engine properly and carefully. And you don't have to worry about finding an old wad of bubble gum under the seat."

"Since the car's mechanical parts haven't yet been abused, you can drive them and they should work perfectly and reliably. And if they don't, you'll be protected by a warranty."

"You'll be the star of the neighborhood that new car is gorgous, and it has 'you' written all over it."

The pristine beauty of a brand-new car could cause almost anyone to temporarily forget the monthly payments. And one peek at your dream car's sticker price and you're bound to grip your steering wheel with sticker shock.

The alternative is to turn to the used-car market, as two out of three car buyers do each year.

"You don't have to pay new-car prices."

You have a wider choice of cars.

Catalytic converters need care

The catalytic converter is an important component of your vehicle's exhaust system. Its function is to help keep our air clean by converting the harmful gases your car engine generates—such as carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and nitrous oxides—in harmless gas and water vapor.

Here are a few facts you should know if you think your converter needs replacement.

The catalytic converter on your car is covered by a five-year, 50,000-mile warranty from the vehicle's manufacturer, who will replace it if it becomes damaged within that period.

Unless a converter is rusted out or plugged up, it is impossible to determine that it is malfunctioning without the use of some special emissions testing equipment.

According to a manufacturer of catalytic converters, a converter should be replaced if:

• The converter is leaking.

• A state or local inspection program has determined that your converter has been damaged, lead-poisoned or in need of replacement.

• Your car has more than 50,000 miles and the need for converter replacement—because of clogging, rusting or another cause—is documented by the installer.

"You can sidestep depreciation. This has is a critical factor. In the first years of a car's life, depreciation costs can be higher than insurance, loan interest, maintenance or fuel. For the one-owner-wise individual, the big difference in costs of a new car is the best reason to buy used. All too many new-car buyers cheerfully hand over $10,000 for a new car that won't even wince when its value immediately plunges $2,000 as they drive it off the dealer's lot."

Used cars do have one disadvantage: They require a lot of work to keep one in shape, especially if it's been mis-treated.

New-car buyers don't just have to absorb thousands of dollars in depreciation costs for the thrill of tearing the protective plastic off the seats. Most expect freedom from breakdowns and repair bills.

Industry sources say annual repair costs for an American compact sedan start at about $300 during the first year of ownership, then rise to $400 for a 2-year-old car, and then to about $500 annually for a 6-year-old car. (These figures are based on the assumption that the car is driven 10,000 miles a year.)

Because labor rates and parts for imported cars are often higher than for domestic cars, you should probably double or even triple those costs if you own anything particularly fancy, like a BMW or Porsche.

Depreciation is most devastating to a car's value in the first few years. It is also true that, most cars continue to lose their value, though at a slower rate, until they're almost worthless, and ready for the eternal junk yard.

But some cars, known as enthusiast cars, retain their value better than others. These cars perform and handle exceptionally well, and are therefore relatively attractive. In addition, they often possess superior technology and show fine craftsmanship, and the frequent use of such features as four-wheel drive.

Enthusiast cars generally maintain about 70 percent of their value after four years. By contrast, ordinary cars that most people consider more sensible and sensible tend to retain only about 55 percent of their value after four years.

But most important to the used-car buyer, the enthusiast car seems to reach a plateau after four or five years (when they stop depreciating), while ordinary cars just keep on falling.

Get the facts before auto loan

Many car dealers have been offering unusually low interest rates on new cars. But are these low interest rates really a better deal?

There are many factors that determine whether a special offer provides genuine savings. The interest rates is only part of the cost of a financing package. Other terms, such as the down payment, also affect the total financing cost.

Patrice Dill, a consumer education agent for the Missouri Cooperative Extension Service, advises consumers to read advertised specials carefully and phone or visit the dealership to find out about all the terms and conditions of the offer. Then they should compare them against specials offered by other dealers.

She lists the following as some of the questions that should be considered when discussing terms with a salesperson:

• Would the price be lower if consumers paid cash or supplied their own financing from banks or credit unions?

• Does the financing require a larger-than-usual down payment? For example, 25 or 30 percent?

• Are there limits on the length of the loan? In other words, are consumers required to pay off the loan in a short period of time, 12 or 24 months, for instance—or a long period of time, such as 60 months?

• Is financing available for a limited time only? Some dealers limit special deals to a few days or require that consumers take delivery by a specified date.

• Does the low rate apply to all cars in stock or only to certain models?

• Does the dealer offer other financing packages that consumers might prefer?

• Consumers are not limited to the financing offered by the dealer." Dollar points out. "Consumers may want to consult agency considered," she adds. "And be sure to consider all aspects of a financing plan before signing a contract."

Art, music featured at program

GRANITE CITY — The art and band departments of Granite City High School will honor their senior students during the annual Fine Arts Festival from 7-9:30 p.m. Thursday.

The art department will use all four rooms to display freshmen, sophomore and junior work from the school year.

Graduating seniors with majors in art will have their own display in the main corridor of the school.

The show is free and will be open throughout the evening so the public attending may view the art exhibit before and after the band concert, that starts at 8 p.m.

The seniors will put up art work from all four years of their high school experience. Senior Art Rich, art department head, "It's always interesting to view their progress in the eight semesters. We are proud of the quality of work done by these seniors."

Senior art majors are Debbie Burmeister, Michelle Jones, Lisa Lewis, Kim Palmer, Ed Schrader, Paul Singleton and Rochelle Willaredt.

The band concert will be held in the auditorium. Admission is 75 cents for adults and 35 cents for students, or a season ticket.

This final concert of the school year will feature a variety of musical selections, said Joe Owens, band director.

"I'm sure we will have a good response from the community," Owens said.

Band members Kimberly Asbeck, Rebecca Bonvicino, Beth Brinkoff, Brian Forbes, Cynthia Jeffries, Charles Leavitt, Michael Materi, Ann McLean, Lynn Olson, Mariana Oliver, Kenyon Reed, Chris Vangel, Jake Varadian and Christina White.

Bell yells about 'anticomsumer' restrictions

Ameritech is urging Congress to take corrective measures in the federal court overseeing the breakup of the Bell System fails to remove "anticomsumer restrictions" imposed on the nation's Bell companies.

Freeing the Bell companies of prohibited information services, manufacturing and most long-distance markets would help keep local service reasonably priced, and improve the quality of local new jobs and make U.S. industry more competitive, Ameritech is telling Congress.

As U.S. District Judge Harold Greene weighs arguments concerning the restrictions, two Congressional subcommittees are reviewing the competitive effects of the 1984 Bell System breakup. The House Judiciary Subcommittee on Monopolies, chaired by Rep. Peter Rodino, and the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Antitrust, Monopolies and Business Rights, chaired by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, are conducting hearings.

"Continuation of the restrictions is an anathema to Congress," Long-hair consumer spokesman, said Kenneth Millard. Ameritech senior vice president of corporate strategy, in testimony prepared for the Senate subcommittee, said: "In the Bell companies, Bell is a division of the nation's Bell companies.

The restrictions "inhibit consumer benefits because they hinder competition in order to protect individual competitors," Millard said. The restrictions are "crippling" the nation's communications infrastructure, he added, causing it to lose its competitive advantage in the world's most technologically advanced country.

"The question before this committee is whether the MCI (Modification of Final Judgment) should continue to shield industrial giants like AT&T, GTE and IBM from competition in the local telephone market, consumers and trade, or whether Congress should now reaffirm its pro-consumer policy by removing the restrictions, re-arming America's technological competitiveness in the process," Millard said.

He added that state regulatory agencies in Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin — seeking ways to help hold down customer rates — have submitted comments to Greene supporting removing the restrictions.

The restrictions "inhibit consumer benefits because they hinder competition in order to protect individual competitors," Millard said. The restrictions are "crippling" the nation's communications infrastructure, he added, causing it to lose its competitive advantage in the world's most technologically advanced country.

Scientists see biotechnology as possible way to feed world

By Dave Jefferson

Staff writer
For each of the past four years the United Nations Association of the United States of America (UNA-USA) Multilateral Project has focused on a single global issue that seems beyond the problem-solving capabilities of one nation. This year the UNA-USA looks at world hunger, especially on the African continent.

This month, in cooperation with the Missouri Botanical Garden, the World Affairs Council and the Missouri Foreign Affairs Council, UNA-USA held a two-day conference in St. Louis to discuss solutions to world hunger.

Biotechnology — the art of moving genes around to impart new substances, according to Monsanto spokesman Gary F. Barton — is seen as one of the ways to put more food on the tables of the world's poor and undernourished. So Monsanto's new Life Sciences laboratory in Chesterfield seemed to be holding the opening festival for a conference of international scientists studying the problem.

"Hunger is one of the biggest unsolved problems of our day," said Mary T. Hall, a member of the UNA-USA Board of Governors and conference chairwoman.

The solution requires combining the efforts of a company like Monsanto, which can research and fund the work, with a drive by groups like UNA-USA and other educational organizations to put the results of that research to use immediately, Hall said.

But can a huge multi-national corporation like Monsanto combine the interests of the world's hungry with profit?

"Monsanto is investing over $100 million a year in the biological sciences and in the field of biotechnology," Barton said.

"And this is a $150 million complex with a multimillion dollar payroll to support that. We're looking in the long-term to develop products that are going to improve the efficiency of agriculture.

"And as such you have to have a profit motive in the sense of the millions of dollars to develop products. Our society is not unique in the universities, where the great cutting edge of science is, discovering a cure to a disease is worthless until it can be marketed and commercialized."

Biotechnology offers significant opportunities to improve the efficiency of production and also perhaps a way to reduce or eliminate the use of traditional pesticides on crops.

"Essentially what we are doing is what plant breeders have been doing for centuries," Barton said. "The ability of genetic engineering is to speed up the process that would normally take geneticists many years to do."

House bill restricts special prosecutors

SPRINGFIELD — A Madison County bill to limit payments and restrict duties of special prosecutors easily passed the Illinois House on May 12.

The legislation sponsored by Rep. Sam Wolf of Granite City, was inspired by Madison County officials' earlier questioning of bills submitted by special prosecutor Bruce Locher of Springfield. The measure passed the House 104-9 and now goes to the Senate.

Asked in floor debate whether there has been a problem in Madison County that prompted the bill, Wolf replied, "Yes, there has."

"There have been situations where the appointment of a special prosecutor is not say, a bad idea, but it has bordered on abuse," Wolf said.

Rep. Tom McCracken, R-Dowd, also asked Wolf whether there has been an indication the special prosecutor went beyond the bounds of his responsibility.

"There's been an indication that may be so. I wouldn't be in a position to state specifically," Wolf replied.

The bill limits special prosecutors' powers to those duties "necessary to fulfill the purpose of such appointment."

Current law simply gives the special prosecutors all the powers and duties of regularly elected attorneys.

Wolf said he received more than 30 letters from state's attorneys supporting the bill. Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen solicited the letters at Wolf's request.

The bill would limit compensa-

House panel approves child welfare measure

The Illinois House Committee on State Government and Administration has approved a measure designed to better enable DCFS to respond in cases of child abuse, according to a spokesman for the measure, State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Groton.

"Over the past year the Department of Children and Family Services has been frequently criticized for lack of action in some abuse cases," Wolf said. "A special Child Welfare Subcommittee carefully examined their operations as well as the basic functions of the department. That committee discovered that in many cases the problems were a result of poor communication and poor cooperation between state agencies."

House Bill 99 as amended makes a number of changes in the policies of DCFS, the Department of Aging, the Department of Abuse and the Department of State Police relating to cooperation in abuse cases. "I believe it is critical that all agencies of state government work together to solve the child abuse issue," Wolf said.

As amended, the legislation incorporates various proposals that were originally embodied in other bills. Among these are measures to:

• Make DCFS the state agency primarily responsible for planning and coordinating child abuse prevention programs.

• Require DCFS to make direct contact with the subject or subjects of child abuse as soon as possible after a report is received.

• Have DCFS in some cases to extend its investigation of child abuse reports past the normal 60-day investigation period.

• Require DCFS to conduct community education programs for its staff.

• Require DCFS officials to visit each licensed day care facility once a year.

tin to a special prosecutor in any 12 months to no more than the annual salary of the state's attorney in that county.

The most Locher was paid by the county in the 12 months so far was about $54,000 in fees during the last county fiscal year ending Nov. 30. Locher was paid a total of about $46,000 in the prior two years.

Madison County State's Attorney Allen is paid $65,500 a year. Locher's appointment was to handle cases involving alleged bribery and fixing of assessments in Madison County.

Project Chance: Not just a check

Project Chance, the nation's largest welfare-to-work program, is fast approaching its goal of moving 100,000 welfare recipients from welfare rolls to payrolls in its first three years, reports Edward T. Duffy, director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Project Chance offers specialized training, education and placement programs to guide welfare clients away from government dependency and into the work force.

"Project Chance operates on a belief that welfare clients, if given the opportunity, will choose to earn a paycheck rather than to live off the state," says Duffy. "We pledge that each and every recipient who makes a true commitment to the program will become a qualified job candidate."

By June 30 of this year, Project Chance will have helped move nearly 75,000 welfare clients into jobs — 36,787 in Fiscal 1986 and 38,212 in the fiscal year. The program is aiming for 65,000 placements in Fiscal 1988 under Gov. James R. Thompson's proposed budget. At this rate, Project Chance will top 100,000 placements in early 1988.

Project Chance graduate Anderson Green of East St. Louis is now working at a security office, sharing his personal experience with the program: "I want to depend on myself to support my family. I like to work and it makes me feel good about myself and I wouldn't have a job today if it wasn't for Project Chance and the training I received through their programs. They helped me find a job, and peace of mind."

Project Chance graduates can be found in a variety of work settings, including retailing, health care, general labor, maintenance, construction and food service. Former welfare recipients are working as data processors, sales clerks, nursing home aides, child care workers, security guards and travel agents.

Most Project Chance clients make minimum wage or better, with wages ranging from $3.35 to $21 an hour. Average annual earnings statewide are about $8,400, compared with average annual benefits of $6,888 for a family of three in Chicago receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Project Chance is working aggressively to develop a partnership with private businesses and non-profit agencies that will agree to supply job training and job placement.

With a new emphasis on marketing, Project Chance is reaching out to businesses to generate increased support among employers looking for highly motivated, skilled workers.

The department also operates a toll-free, 24-hour line, 1-800-327-3075, which employers can call to be matched directly with job-ready Project Chance clients.

There have been efforts in the past to shift the poor from welfare to job training. Project Chance is believed to represent a more intensive and unified approach. It combines counseling, education, job training and placement.

O'Dell selected for leadership program

Leadership St. Louis has selected 54 people from this metropolitan area to participate in its 1987-88 leadership program.

Those selected are people who serve in policy-making positions and as leaders in business, religious, private, public, non-profit and volunteer institutions and agencies throughout the area.

Included in the new list is Kathleen M. O'Dell, director of community relations for Belleville Area College.

The program, which was started in 1976, encourages the professional development of leadership for people who are committed to improving the quality of life in the region. Funded by the Danforth Foundation, it is held two days a month for nine months at various locations.

Gray named to new trade zone position

Don Gray of Brighton has been employed to fill the newly-created position of director of foreign trade zone services for Red Arrow Corp. He has seven years of experience at the Tri-City Regional Port's Foreign Trade Zone.

An FTZ is a secured site within the United States where foreign and domestic merchandise are considered outside U.S. customs territory. No duties, tariffs or taxes are levied on any goods imported into an FTZ until or unless they are brought into U.S. territory.

The St. Louis County Port Authority selected Red Arrow to operate the new foreign trade zone in a location on Wesson Road Industrial Park just off the grounds of Lambert St. Louis International Airport, and its experience in the air freight and freight forwarding business.

other support services for the first time in one completed program.

The program is mandatory for about 88,000 of the 246,000 mothers receiving Aid to Families for Dependent Children. Most of the 106,000 people on Government assistance are married adult males — are required to participate.

Welfare clients who are not required to take part in Project Chance — mostly women with children under the age of six — are encouraged to participate. To intensify efforts to reach out to recruit from this group, voluntary participation has grown from 1,320 in July 1986 to nearly 12,000 in April 1987.

The Department of Public Aid works in cooperation with a network of state agencies to carry out its mission.

Operating on an annual budget of $14 million for Fiscal 1987, Project Chance is able to tap into a wide collection of state resources, above and beyond its annual budget, to ease the move from welfare to work.

Project Chance, called the foundation of Illinois' welfare reform efforts, is based on the belief that welfare cannot serve as a permanent solution to poverty, that it is a temporary stopping point en route to economic freedom. The program is redesigning the welfare system to get back to the original intent — providing short-term assistance during temporary joblessness.

Removing the major obstacles that discourage welfare recipients from entering the workforce is considered crucial to the effectiveness of welfare reform.

The Department of Public Aid supports the governor's request for $73 million in state and federal funds for Project Chance for 1988 and believes a bold financial commitment is needed to meet the growing demand for medical assistance, day care and supplemental grants.

"Project Chance reflects not only an investment in human potential, but an investment in the future of Illinois," says Duffy.

Tales of problems traveling in USSR mostly unfounded

By Robert L. Mack
Special to Journal

When I first mentioned to a friend that I was planning a visit to the Soviet Union, his initial response was "Why on earth would you want to spend your vacation there?"

His reaction was prompted not so much by the ideological antagonism which underlies Western relations with the Soviet Union, but by the rumors which currently circulate among even the most sophisticated travelers.

My friend imagined ungracious treatment at the hands of Soviet hosts. He believed hotel rooms were tapped, movements were monitored by "tour guides," and tourists can't phone home.

It is true that Soviet tourist authorities have a long way to go before they match the professionalism of most tour operators in the West. However, that is the experience of most western visitors to the Soviet Union bear little resemblance to tales repeated by my friend.

Few visitors encounter any serious problems in their travels.

Armed with an open mind, a little bit of patience, and just a dash of skepticism, a trip to the Soviet Union could well turn out to be one of the most fascinating vacations you will ever experience.

An American traveling to Russia for the first time is faced with a number of choices in terms of where to go and what to do. The visitor taking a week or two to soak up the sun at the resort cities of the Crimea will bring home a different impression of Soviet life than the traveler who chooses to focus on the exotic centers of oriental Russia, such as Alma Alta and Tashkent.

Those with a limited stay in the Soviet Union may consider seeing major capital cities of Moscow and Leningrad. I decided to take advantage of my limited time and booked a tour to Western tour operators carrying visitors into the Soviet Union and purchased a package tour that included meals, hotel accommodations, and all major sightseeing.

The vast majority of American travelers prefer to purchase such tour packages for their trip to the Soviet Union—and it is easy to see why. In a country where very few people understand English, it is next to impossible to take care of necessary traveling details without running into innumerable headaches.

Aside from getting a bit lost one or twice thanks to my clumsy transliterations of the Cyrillic alphabet, I had no problems pursuing my private sightseeing. Motorcars were everywhere, Soviet citizens were always eager to help with directions, and the curators of some of the smaller museums sought out leads enthusiastically through their collections.

Perhaps the more important choice which needs to be made by visitors to the Soviet Union involves attitude. This is where cynicism and skepticism come in.

The manner in which the Soviets choose to present their country can baffle foreign visitors. Leningrad, a city originally designed to be Russia's window of the west, remains one of Europe's most attractive cities. The Hermitage, with the largest collections of French impressionist paintings anywhere in the world, Masterpieces by Da Vinci, Raphael, Velasquez, Rubens, and Holbein alone make the museum a worthwhile itinerary addition.

But today's Russians maintain an ambiguous attitude toward the glories and the cruelties of the czarist past. Tour guides and Leningrad residents choose rather to emphasize the city's connections with Vladimir Lenin.

Although the government has largely restored buildings destroyed during World War II, signs can still be seen along Nevsky Prospect (the city's main avenue), warning tourists of the danger of falling shells.

There also is a tendency among Russian guides to gloss over the less glamorous moments of Soviet revolutionary history.

When touring Trubetskoy Bastion at the Peter and Paul Fortress, the guides often lamented the imprisonment of revolutionary socialists in the dank, ill-lit dungeons. Yet the fate of the czar and his ministers, who were imprisoned in the same cells following the Bolshevik revolution, was quietly passed over.

One man asked where the Soviet authorities placed dissidents in the 1980s. He was greeted by a few moments of stony silence and hurried gestures to continue on to the port of the tour.

Westerners are left to deal with this sort of information—or lack of information—as best they can. At times the commitment of the guides is obviously genuine.

"These are my people," said one Leningrad resident, "and any country that has this is my country, and I am proud of that too. My sister and my brother died here during the war. I want people to know how strong we can be, and even though all the destruction and all the hatred, how we can through it with dignity and with strength."

This, at least, the American visitor will be compelled to accept as a true, Russian voice.

13-year wait for one alien ends

Expecting long lines and red tape, John, a businessman, arrived at the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Office in Bridgeton at 9 a.m. May 5.

"I thought it would be better if my wife said I have to get here before the doors open to talk to someone," he said.

John had spent more than six months trying to gain permanent residency and had no hesitation in going to the Immigration office.

"We're so used to going to the office it's a welcome opportunity for them to open the doors to us," he said.

John is one of thousands expected to apply locally for U.S. citizenship during the year-long amnesty program. Officials say they hope the program reaches all who qualify.

Under the new law, illegal aliens who can prove they have been in the U.S. since Jan. 1, 1982, and provide a paper trail to document this, will be granted U.S. citizenship, barring a criminal record or contagious medical conditions.

"This may sound too good to be true, and for some it may be. Many are going to find it difficult to gather the evidence since it was kept secret for so long," said Chester Moyer, officer in charge of the Bridgeton office.

Non-residents are urged to seek legal advice and determine if they have been in the U.S. since 1982. Such documents include rent agreements, bank account statements, paycheck stubs, medical records and loan contracts.

Moyer said backtracking may be a problem for some, since employers have not been eager to acknowledge the hiring of an illegal alien.

Applicants must then pass a medical exam, pay a $165-per-person fee and $50 for each minor child, not to exceed $420 per family, and complete a series of applications including Social Security registration and, for men ages 18-25, draft registration.

Once the paper trail is established and the applicant passes the medical exam, the immigration office forwards the documentation along with a recommendation to its adjunct office in Lincoln, Neb.

"Our office can either accept or deny our recommendation," Moyer said.

Although the process is lengthy, applicants agree it is much faster than applying a visa. "It's not long to come to this office and I don't understand all the red tape, but it is far better than waiting another 13 years," John said.

John said he would probably not have a problem gathering documentation since he has had his own business for 15 years. He added that, if he is granted citizenship, his wife and children will follow.

Aliens given chance at citizenship

By Tina Zimmerman
Staff writer

After years of seeking illegal aliens, U.S. immigration officials are offering a window of opportunity for illegal aliens to come to them.

As part of the Immigration and Nationality Act, non-residents, many of whom are in hiding to avoid immigration officials, can apply for U.S. citizenship without fear of prosecution.

May 5 marked the beginning of one of the most sweeping programs in U.S. history — a year-long, nationwide amnesty program. For years, aliens who have avoided the federal government, can now become naturalized citizens in 18 months by applying with the very agency they once feared — the immigration office.

Those who have lived in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982, and who have not left the country for more than 45 days at one time, or a total of 180 days, are eligible to apply. About 10 million persons are expected to apply. 107 offices have opened to handle the influx.

"It's a matter of practicality," said Chester Moyer, officer in charge of the Bridgeton office, 3445 Bridgeland. "For years, the government has been telling people to come to the borders and we still have non-residents coming through. It's a logical solution to a long-term problem."

Local officials say they expect between 5,000 and 17,000 non-residents to apply for citizenship. Moyer said he expects the International Institute, 3800 Park, to handle most of the area candidates.

Moyer said the institute, headed by Rev. Norm Schmeidler, offers counseling, translation and attorney services, which many non-residents request before applying for permanent residency.

The Bridgeton office is one of 107 nationwide satellite offices that opened May 5. The office is expected to be open two to five years. The application deadline is May 1, 1988, but Moyer said processing may take up to five years.

"We want to bring these people into the mainstream of American life once and for all," Moyer said. "Now is their chance."

Moyer said his office had given out about 10 applications and interviewed two registrants Tuesday morning. He said he was not surprised to see the low turnout on the first day.

"A lot of people are going to wait and see what happens to those who apply," Moyer said. "They're not sure what this (permanent citizenship) is all about."

Applicants receive a temporary residency identification card when they complete the preliminary paperwork.

Moyer said the decision to grant citizenship is usually made within 10 days of applying.

"Sometimes we are missing documentation or need to verify information and that's where most (applications) are delayed."

Finding fascinating views of the Arch

By Al Foster

Correspondent

Wandering around, I came across the Gateway Arch in the most unexpected places.

No, the Arch doesn't move around. It sits firmly in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial. But one can go many places and find a view of the world's tallest monument.

As long as fog are not more than 1,100 feet above sea level, the aircraft warning light of the 630-foot tall monument — whose legs are placed 40 feet above sea level — is visible.

One place where I frequently see the Arch is a little east of the intersection of Big Bend and Geyer roads in Kirkwood. On a clear day the arch can be seen stretching across the middle of the Burlington-Northern (nee Frisco) railroad tracks.

The Arch is easy to see from the overlook at Jefferson Barracks Park in south St. Louis County.

I was surprised to get a great view of the stainless steel monument from Bluff Road, down the hill from Edwardsville. Most of the land between is farmland, so the view is clear of the Burlington-Northern (nee Frisco) railroad tracks.

I was surprised to get a great one understood the archaeologist significantly.

That's supposed to be a place on Rock Creek Road in Jefferson County with a clear view of the upper part of the Arch — at least, that is what a friend tells me. I believe, though, that's the lower part I've heard about. Sometime this spring I intend to check it out.

One vantage point that took me by surprise is Lookaway Drive. That's in the City of St. Louis, just south of the Arch. It sticks up and goes northward to the water works. Aptly named, Lookaway Drive is high above the Chain of Rocks waterworks.

Viewed from here, the Mississippi curves downstream from the bottom of the Arch. It manages to go around downtown St. Louis. The cityscape seems to sit out on a peninsula with the Arch at the tip.

This is one of those places where you look at the city fathers would put a few benches, just to let people sit and look down the mighty Mississippi. The best you can do now is sit on, or in, your car, and watch even the light change of river with shifting colors. If you are near sun down, sit and wait as the city lights go on. It is worth it.

Kirkwood doesn't seem far enough to the southwest. There must be higher points from which to view the Arch as the land rises into the Ozarks. So far I haven't found a better place in that direction.

I have been told there is a place in Greensfelder County Park behind Six Flags Amusement Park where a trail leads to an overlook. The view is supposed to include the Arch. That's another one I want to check out.

There's a Jim-dandy spot in south St. Louis where you can sit on a bench and look upstream at the Arch. That's Bellerive Park off South Broadway. The view is good, but the distance is short. So far, that's the best Arch view I've found to the south.

That's not to say there aren't better views from longer distances.

I know there are further views from the tops of towers and other elevated structures. Southwestern Bell has microwave towers in all directions. They shoot microwave signals from the top of a building near Jefferson on Olive Street to towers set on high points at the tops of various buildings.

I would guess the top of the Arch could be seen from them on a clear day. That's OK for modern-day communications, but I'll stick with ground-level looking for my Arch views.

Anyone can get into the sport of Arch viewing. My own rules require that it be visible from the ground. The tops of towers or tall buildings don't count. I guess porches and decks on the first floor are acceptable.

Many people say out there can point me in the right direction. Come to think of it, the direction isn't important; it is the distance. How far can you see the Arch on a clear day?

Thompson defends purchase of plane

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James Thompson defended the state plane being purchased for the use of state Corrections Director Michael Lane, although he admitted "it looks funny to talk about a new airplane when we're talking about laying off prison guards."

The governor also defended hefty pay increases given much of his staff over the last few years, saying the staff members are "on call 24 hours a day" but conceding, "I understand how it looks to an unemployed person during a layoff." Senate committee, the whole, on the governor's proposal to raise the state income tax and expand the sales tax to services, Thompson refused to say whether his staff salaries and the airplane.

On Lane's plane, Thompson said, "I don't think there's a director of corrections in the state whose plane to the system runs well than Mike Lane. One way or another, that man has to keep control of his institutions."

"He doesn't know from day to day or week to week if he may have to go back to Joliet or Menard or the new institution."

"We'll never know how often those parts, at great personal cost to him in terms of time for himself and his family, have prevented a riot or death or injury," Thompson said.

"He probably has had the toughest job in state government. Only you can decide how well he does it."

At a House Appropriations Committee session April 28, when Lane announced he was "indefinitely" putting off the decision on the site for a new prison sought by over 30 communities, he confirmed a $25-million plane was being purchased for his use.

He complained the present state fleet of airplanes and helicopters did not meet his official travel needs.

The same evening, Lane said the state might have to close Menard prison if tax increases were approved.

On his plane salaries, Thompson said, "Some of them I had considered grossly underpaid for many years" and was trying to make up for that. "That's a human being motivated especially when I require high standards and hard work."

The staff of the governor is on call 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. They work a lot of nights and weekends. "It's not a part-time job. In many cases

Increase in Illinois adoptions praised

The Public Employees Roundtable has announced that the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, among the winners of its 1987 Public Service Excellence Awards.

The Roundtable, a non-profit coalition of public associations representing public employees and retirees, presented the awards during ceremonies honoring Public Service Recognition Week (May 4-10).

A special recognition certificate was awarded to DCFS for its successes in moving "special needs" children out of foster care and into adoptive homes. Since 1981, the agency has reduced the number of children waiting for adoption from an all-time high of 2,832 to an all-time low of 280.

Its minority adoption program, called "One Church/One Child," was particularly noted for its accomplishments in finding adoptive homes for black children. The creative partnership between DCFS and black churches in Illinois has been largely responsible for the almost 90 percent reduction in the number of waiting children over the last six years.

DCFS was also credited with creating specialized adoption units in the agency, and for providing adoption benefits to state employees who adopt special needs children.

Other winners of the public Service Excellence Awards include Florida's Department of Law Enforcement, the Volunteer's Executive Council of the Volunteer Corps, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Comfort foods ease the blues while nourishing a tired body

While many people are on a diet much of the time, one time people throw their best intentions out the window is when they are feeling blue.

Nostalgic dishes do not have to be heavy with calories and fat in order to be satisfying. Sometimes canned foods can be lower in calories and fat than homemade varieties. Below are some easy ways to use up leftovers.

After all, who wants to be comforted once the crisis passes tomorrow?

After a long, tiring day, try an easy and nutritious dish like Ham and Pea Potato Topper. Simply combine and heat thin strips of ham, peas, beef gravy, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Sprinkle with shredded baked potatoes. It is an excellent source of vitamin C. A good source of iron, and for less than 350 calories per serving, this easy comfort food dish is a winner.

For a change of pace, go Chinese and try Oriental Mushroom Beef. Simply combine and heat thin strips of ham, peas, beef gravy, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Sprinkle with shredded baked potatoes. It is an excellent source of vitamin C. A good source of iron, and for less than 350 calories per serving, this easy comfort food dish is a winner.

For those who are comforted by traditional cream recipes, Saucy Chicken over Noodles is a must. Worcestershire sauce, mustard and ginger add zip to chicken tossed with tender-crisp broccoli, chopped onion and diced ham. Serve this dish in an enameled pan for a dish that is rich in fiber, an excellent source of protein and vitamin A, and yet, less than 320 calories per serving.

Ham and pea potato topper

1/2 can (10 1/2 oz.) brown gravy with
1/2 cup frozen peas
1/2 cup cooked ham, cut in thin
2 inch strips
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Annual Art Fair, Wine Fest held in Washington, Mo.

The annual Art Fair and Wine Fest was May 15 and 16, in Washington, Mo.

The event took place in Rennick Park on Washington's picturesque and historic Missouri riverfront. This year's juried show displayed the work of artists under the large tents, and over $9,000 to buy art was pledged.

In the open-air pavilion, 10 wineries poured samples of over 50 Missouri-produced wines. A unique feature of the event was that all wines poured in samples were for sale by the bottle at established winery prices.

Participating wineries included Ferrigno, Montelle, Sunny Slope, Reis, Carver, St. James, Osage Ridge, St. Genevieve Winery and Les Bourgeois.

Personality award to Wickham

Tammy Lynn Wickham, 14, daughter of Larry and Sharon Wickham of Granite City, participated in the Miss Illinois American Coed Pageant held April 24-25.

Wickham was one of the 20 semifinalists and she was voted Miss Coed Personality by the girls participating in the pageant.

She is a freshman at Granite City High School and is active in student council, cheerleading, the softball team and the secondary honor program.

Wickham was sponsored by Granite City Steel Employees Credit Union, Thomas Mortuaries Ltd. and Henry Burns Furniture.

She was the only entrant from the downstate area and the only one from the Quad City Area. It was her first pageant.

This was the fourth year for the pageant, based on scholastic and academic achievement and community involvement.

There were 122 girls entered. Prior to the pageant, each girl submitted an application indicating her grade point average, school involvement and other activities.

During competition, the girls are judged on poise and appearance (gowns and interviews). Her original application, her bank yearbook, a sponsor and her academic standing are judged.

A "coed" is a girl who attends a co-educational school or university.

'Pepper' Thorngate program

"All About Pepper" was the subject of a presentation given by Pat Polley for members of the Thorngate Garden Club at its annual meeting.

She said dowries and taxes were paid with pepper in the middle Ages. Many landlords demanded rent of pepper rather than money. Pepper was common in dried form and pepper corn. Originating in the East Indies, it is now raised in the tropics in both the Eastern and Western hemispheres.

"The plants usually take seven years to start producing," she said. White pepper is made from fully-ripened green, yellow berries picked before they turn red. The members with homemade pro-

A dry, cool place provides the best storage for both whole and ground pepper. Containers should be kept tightly closed because exposure to air robs the spice of flavor, the speaker added.

Beula Miller hosted the meeting and served a luncheon at tables decorated with Easter motifs. An egg tree was surrounded by miniature Easter baskets filled with candy. The business was assisted by Lucille Mercer.

Jean Bethel recited a poem entitled "April," followed by a business session conducted by Betty King. She presented the members with handmade pro-

Smith is the former Pearl May. She was born May 23, 1888, in Drexell, Tenn., and moved with her family at an early age to Rector, Ark.

She married John H. Smith on Oct. 21, 1906. He died in 1952. The couple lived in Rector until 1937, when they moved to Dexter, Mo.

Smith has nine living children. The pastor of Bethesda Baptist, the Rev. Luther Abbott, says it is a joy to have one of the church members, "Miss Pearl," as she is known to her friends. "She is one of the most faithful members of the congregation ever to grace our pews."

"She fell and broke a vertebra a couple of months ago but she is already back at the services. She has a remarkable sense of humor as anyone will tell you," he said.

Smith has 30 grandchildren, 73 great-grandchildren and 38 great-great-grandchildren.

The family and the church are inviting friends and neighbors to attend. Mrs. Vera Lynn, a friend of Barrow, will bake the cake for the birthday celebration.

Film about Gertrude Stein mixes facts with fiction

American critic John Chamberlain once remarked Gertrude Stein's literary style was like "Coca Cola—tastes like it never stops and it's always the same."

Which is kind of how "Waiting for the Moon," Director Jill Godmilow's film portrait of Stein and her adopted daughter, secretary Alice B. Toklas, impressed this writer as it straddles the line between fact and fiction.

"Waiting for the Moon" opened a two-week engagement Friday, May 15, at the Tivoli Repertory Theater.

There is a script by Mark Achbar, written by himself and director Godmilow, and the film is exceptionally well-acted with Linda Bassett as the egocentric Stein and Linda Hunt playing Toklas. It is a remarkable woman of inexhaustible patience and endurance, who provided Stein with a variety of services during their 40 years together. Stein and Toklas remained intimate friends through two world wars until Stein died in 1946.

Many people recall it was Gertrude Stein who said "A rose is a rose is a rose" and who routinely referred to herself as a genius.

Toklas lived in Stein's shadow, typing, writing, doing the cooking, cleaning, crocheting from patterns designed by Picasso and generally functioning as a faithful companion. She also wrote a cookbook featuring a recipe for hashish brownies that was considered

Reviews

By Frank Hunter

ERNEST ALICE Bruce McGill, as Ernest Hemingway, teases an infant left in the care of Linda Hunt, who plays Alice B. Toklas, in "Waiting for the Moon."

scandalous at the time.

Stein, a novelist and author of miscellaneous prose, one of the leading expatriate American residents of Paris and the subject of wide literary controversy during her lifetime.

Her unique, celebrated style, supposedly influenced by the psychological theories of William James and 20th century French painting, claimed to be a use of words for their associations and sound rather than solely for their literal meaning.

She employed an intricate system of repetition and variation on a single theme, rigorously eschewed the use of conventional punctuation and syntax and put the emphasis on impressionistic sound and an appealing pattern of sound, vivid images, flashes of beauty, wit and often unrestrained gaiety.

"Waiting for the Moon" is composed of uninteresting events in the lives of Stein and Toklas, assuming many of the activities the two women engage in probably happened. The film is faithful to the spirit, if not to the biographical fact.

It maneuvers time, place and character, presenting a portrait of the writer in her own modernist terms, delighting in the humor and irony that flowed from Stein and Toklas' lives, with a tragic time in Stein's life when she was erroneously diagnosed as having a terminal illness.

The year is 1936 during the Spanish Civil War, and the main narrative is divided into five scenes, each chosen at random during the three-month period when Stein was certain she was doomed.

The film is far from lively, but is civilized and thoughtful and quietly amusing.

Rated PG. (Nothing offensive.)

Recognition "Why God Made Mankind" was given by Georgia McMillan, followed by a talk on "Love" given by Cobien.

Members observed a silent time to honor deceased members.

How A Family Can Deal With An Alcoholic Without Having Him Pack His Bags.

There was a time when dealing with an alcoholic in the family meant getting him out of the house. But today the Edgewood Outpatient Program makes it possible for people who are dependent upon alcohol or drugs to get help while living at home. So treatment doesn't have to disrupt their jobs or schoolwork.

That doesn't mean the program is easy. At Edgewood, we feel that chemical dependency affects lives physically, psychologically, spiritually and socially. They work with certified counselors, many of whom have been treated all aspects of a person's life. Only by taking time to treat each aspect can the patient begin a total, lasting recovery.

So our outpatients go through an intense four part treatment to restore their themselves in the same program. They receive the same group therapy and rehabilitative care that our inpatients do, so they get the same proven treatment that Edgewood has become known for.

throughout the region. Yet they're on a schedule that won't disrupt their family life like their problem already has.

The Outpatient Program isn't for everybody. Some patients require the full-time attention only our inpatient plan can provide. However, for others, it's exactly what's needed to help for the alcoholic and relief for the family.

So if there's someone in your family who is dependent upon alcohol or drugs, call Edgewood. Ask about our Outpatient Program. And save those bags for a trip with the family.

Baker's camp is June 15-19

Warrior soccer coach Gene Baker will hold his annual Warrior Kickers Camp June 15-19 at the North Park soccer field.

The camp is for boys and girls ages 7-18 and will be held from 9 a.m. to noon each day. A $60 registration fee should be sent to Gene Baker, 1000 Vista Ridge, St. Louis, Mo., 63138.
